What challenges do terrorist threats pose to the liberal democratic state? In what ways are legitimate security concerns to be considered within the framework of liberal constitutionalism? Have countermeasures against terrorism contributed to the decline of liberalism?

Prof. Mordechai Kremnitzer, professor emeritus at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and a renowned expert in the field of constitutional and criminal law, will address these questions in his lecture at the University of Zurich. He is a senior fellow at the Israel Democracy Institute and a regular columnist for Haaretz. The lecture will be held in English and is open to the public.
